

On March 23, 2010 President Obama signed the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) into law as Public Law 111-148. It includes most of the features of our new health care system. On March 30, 2010, President Obama signed into law the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act (HCERA) as Public Law 111-152. HCERA modifies certain elements of PPACA. Together they constitute our new health care system (“new law”).

EXCHANGES

States are required to establish American Health Benefit Exchanges by 2014. Individuals may obtain their coverage through these Exchanges. These Exchanges will include Small Health Option Programs (SHOPs) through which small businesses may obtain coverage. Generally, small businesses with up to 100 employees will be able to acquire coverage through the Exchanges. After 2016, States may expand the pools to include larger employers.

INDIVIDUAL MANDATES

Individuals must obtain “minimum essential coverage” for health insurance for themselves and dependents. The requirement begins in 2014 with a $95 minimum penalty. The minimum penalties increase to $325 in 2015 and to $695 in 2016. If household “modified adjusted gross income” exceeds specified levels, the penalty is greater. The percents of household income are 1.0 percent in 2014 (so an individual making more than $9,500 would pay more than the minimum flat amount as a penalty in 2014), 2.0 percent in 2015, and 2.5 percent for 2016 and thereafter.

There is a cap on the minimum penalty per family of no more than 300 percent of the minimum penalty (e.g. $95 x 300 percent = $285 for 2014), regardless of the size of the family. Children under 18 are assessed at half the minimum penalty. If the cost of lowest available plan exceeds 8 percent of income there is no penalty for not having coverage, and there are hardship and religious exclusions.

EMPLOYER MANDATES

Effective January 1, 2014, there are large employer “shared” responsibilities. An employer is an applicable large employer with respect to any calendar year if it employed an average of at least 50 full-time employees during the preceding calendar year. (The language in the earlier Senate-approved version of health care reform that provided a lower employee threshold for the construction industry was dropped.)

The new law assesses a penalty on employers with 50 or more full time equivalent (FTE) workers that fail to provide coverage to their employees and have at least one full time employee who receives a premium tax credit established by the new law. An FTE is 30 or more hours a week. In calculating the average, an employer shall, in addition to the number of full-time employees for any month, include for such month a number of full-time employees determined by dividing the aggregate number of hours of service of employees who are not full-time employees for the month by 120.

If the large employer is required to pay a penalty, the annual assessment is $2,000 times all full time employees. The large employer can subtract the first 30 full time employees from the payment calculation (e.g., a firm with 51 workers that does not offer coverage will pay an amount equal to 51 minus 30, or 21 times the applicable per employee payment amount).

The new law allows businesses to go over the 50 employee limit for 120 days when using seasonal employees, without triggering the potential assessment liability.

If the large employer offers coverage but there is an employee who obtains coverage through an Exchange and receives a premium tax credit, the employer is assessed $3,000 for each such employee. (The overall exposure is capped) An employee will be eligible for a premium tax credit if the cost of the employer plan exceeds more than 9.5 percent of the employee's income or the actuarial value of the plan is less than 60 percent of the new law's specified minimum essential coverage.

The large employer's plan will have to meet the minimum essential coverage requirements to be a "qualified employer sponsored plan," however, the new law does "grandfather" existing employer plans. The grandfathering applies to the benefit standards imposed by the law. However, those plans must comply with some new requirements within six months of enactment including: eliminating pre-existing conditions exclusions for children (by 2014 for adults); using a definition of dependent child, if dependent coverage is offered, to allow coverage up to age 26; and prohibiting lifetime limits on coverage and rescissions of coverage. The plans must meet new restrictions on annual dollar coverage limits this year, and eliminate them by 2014. Grandfathered employer plans must be modified by 2014 to eliminate waiting periods beyond 90 days.

While a small employer is not required to offer health insurance plans, most group plans will have to meet the insurance reforms (e.g. no pre-existing conditions) imposed by law on grandfathered plans.

Employers with more than 200 employees must automatically enroll all employees in their plans.

The law creates a Free Choice Voucher program that requires large employers to offer such vouchers to employees with incomes of less than 400 percent of the Federal Poverty Level (FPL) and whose share of the premium exceeds 8 percent but is less than 9.8 percent of their income. The voucher would be equal to what the employer would be paying for the employee's coverage and the employee could use the voucher to buy coverage through an Exchange. If the employer provides the voucher, it would not be subject to the assessment for that employee if the employee receives a federal premium tax credit.

SMALL BUSINESS SUBSIDIES

The new law creates a 35 percent tax credit for 2010-2013 of the lesser of (1) the amount of contributions the employer made on behalf of the employees during the taxable year for the qualifying health coverage and (2) the amount of contributions that the employer would have made during the taxable year if each employee had enrolled in coverage with a small business benchmark premium.

There is a similar 50 percent credit beginning in 2014 for no more than two consecutive taxable years but the insurance must be obtained through an Exchange.

To be eligible for the credits, small employers will have to contribute at least 50 percent of the cost of premiums towards a qualified health plan. Small businesses with 10 or fewer full-time employees and with average taxable wages of $25,000 or less could claim the full credit. It is phased out as average employee compensation increases from $25,000 to $50,000 and as the number of full-time employees increases from 10 to 25. Full-time employees would be calculated by dividing the total hours worked by all employees during the tax year by 2,080 (with a maximum of 2,080 hours for any one employee). Seasonal workers would be exempt from this calculation. Self-employed individuals, including partners and sole proprietors, two percent shareholders of an S Corporation, and five percent owners of the employer are not treated as employees for purposes of this credit. There is also a special rule to prevent sole proprietorships from receiving the credit for the owner and their family members.

The credit is only available to offset actual tax liability and is claimed on the employer's tax return. The credit is not payable in advance to the taxpayer or refundable. Thus, the employer must pay the employees' premiums during the year and claim the credit at the end of the year on its income tax return.

INDIVIDUAL SUBSIDIES

If individuals obtain their coverage through an Exchange, they may be eligible for a premium tax credit. There is a sliding scale based on a percent of the Federal Poverty Level (FPL). The lower your income, the bigger the subsidy (or looking at it the other way, the less of your income you are required to pay for obtain coverage). Individuals and families with household income of up to 400 percent of FPL would not be required to spend more than a specified percent of their income on premiums. Individuals and families will receive a credit so that families at the 400 percent FPL will have to pay no more than 9.5 percent of their incomes. (The 2009 Poverty Guidelines for the 48 Contiguous States and the District of Columbia for one person in the family - $10,830, for two - $14,570, for three - 8,310 ,or for 4 - $22,050 and so forth). Therefore, a family of four with household income of $88,000 (400 percent of $22,050) would be eligible for a premium tax credit.

As noted in the employer mandate section, if an employer offers coverage but the employee's contribution would exceed 9.5 percent of income or if the plan pays for less than 60 percent of covered expenses, the employee is eligible for the premium credit.

HOSPITAL INSURANCE TRUST TAX

The new law increases the Medicare Hospital Insurance (HI) trust portion) of the payroll tax to 2.35 percent from 1.45 percent (i.e. a 0.9 increase) on wages or self-employment income over $200,000 for individual return and $250,000 for a joint return. There is no limit on the amount of wages or self-employment income that is subject to the tax (unlike the social security portion of the FICA tax, which has a wage cap). This is an increase in the employee's share only. The employer will continue to pay to its 1.45 percent rate share on the employee's wages. In the case of the self-employed, they will pay "only" the additional 0.9 percent. The increase takes effect in 2013.

UNEARNED INCOME MEDICARE CONTRIBUTION TAX

Since the HI applies only to earned income, the new law establishes a new “Unearned Income Medicare Contribution” (UIMC) tax. This is calculated separately from the HI tax and would apply to “net investment income” which is interest, dividends, royalties, rents, gross income from a trade or business involving passive activities, and net gain from disposition of property (other than property held in a trade or business). The rate is 3.8 percent. The UIMC tax on net investment income would not apply if modified adjusted gross income is less than $250,000 in the case of a joint return, or $200,000 in the case of a single return. The UIMC tax takes effect in 2013.

HEALTH CARE BENEFIT EXCISE TAX

The new law imposes an excise tax of 40 percent on health insurers and health plan administrators for coverage that exceeds certain thresholds ($10,200 single coverage and $27,500 for family coverage; 11,850 and $30,950 for retirees and employees in high risk professions, indexed for inflation.) Health insurance coverage subject to the excise tax is broadly defined to include not only the employer and employee premium payments for health insurance (including self-insured plans). In addition, tax advantaged accounts such as flexible spending accounts (FSAs), health savings accounts (HSAs) and health reimbursement accounts (HRAs) are also specified as health insurance coverage and subject to the excise tax. It excludes stand-alone dental and vision plans from the tax and permits an employer to reduce the cost of the coverage when applying the tax if the employer’s age and gender demographics are not representative of the age and gender demographics of a national risk pool.

The excise tax takes effect in 2018.

FORM 1099

This has absolutely nothing to do with health care reform. It was inserted solely to raise revenue. Under current tax law, a business taxpayer making payments to a service provider (the “payee” in IRS language) aggregating to $600 or more for services in the course of a trade or business in a year is required to send an information return to the IRS (and to the service provider-payee) setting forth the amount, as well as name and address of the recipient of the payment (generally on Form 1099). Under current law, the business taxpayer is not required to issue a Form 1099 to a corporation that provides services to it.

The new law makes two changes. The first is to require businesses to issue the Forms 1099 to corporations as well as all persons in a trade or business. The second is to expand significantly the scope by requiring the issuance for payments made to “property” providers as well as service providers. The new requirements apply to payments made after December 31, 2011.

MISCELLANEOUS

The threshold for claiming the itemized deduction for medical expenses is increased from 7.5 percent to 10 percent, beginning in 2013.

Contributions to Flexible Spending Accounts (FSAs) are capped at $2,500 (indexed) annually, beginning in 2013.

Employers will have to include the value of an employee's health coverage on the Form W-2 beginning with the forms for the 2011 tax year.
